

Tin whistle tabs for: My girl (intro)

Categories: Folk

Author/Performer: Temptations

The image displays three systems of tin whistle tabs for the introduction of the song 'My girl'. Each system consists of a grid of circles representing notes and a corresponding set of fingerings below it.

System 1: A 4x4 grid of circles. The first three rows are entirely black. The fourth row has white circles in the first and third positions, and black circles in the second and fourth positions. Below the grid are four sets of fingerings, each labeled 'g d d'.

System 2: A 5x3 grid of circles. The first two rows are entirely black. The third row has white circles in the first and second positions, and black circles in the third and fourth positions. The fourth row has white circles in the first and second positions, and black circles in the third and fourth positions. The fifth row has white circles in the first and second positions, and black circles in the third and fourth positions. Below the grid are three sets of fingerings: the first two are labeled 'd a b C E G A+' and the third is labeled 'C E G A+'.

System 3: A 5x3 grid of circles. The first row has white circles in the first and second positions, and black circles in the third and fourth positions. The second row is entirely black. The third row has white circles in the first and second positions, and black circles in the third and fourth positions. The fourth row has white circles in the first and second positions, and black circles in the third and fourth positions. The fifth row has white circles in the first and second positions, and black circles in the third and fourth positions. Below the grid are two sets of fingerings: the first is labeled 'C E G A+' and the second is labeled 'C++'.

Source: <https://simpletinwhistle.com>